Write a Full sentence outline for your final paper

This will include:

Step One: Write a short intro that explains your topic and what the controversy is regarding your topic. What are the different points of view that make it argumentative?

Step Two: Develop a working thesis

Step Three: Decide on at least three Supporting Points. These should directly connect to your thesis, support it, and develop the discussion about it. You may also include counterargument(s) here as well.

Step Four: For each point, develop several supporting details. These details may include counterarguments that naturally come up related to each point, instead of making the counterargument a major point.

Step Five: Now for each supporting detail, think about where you will really need to bring in source material in order to illustrate, create credibility, support, etc. Plan what you will use where and begin thinking about any additional research you may need to do.

Step Six: After all points have been developed and filled in, write a short conclusion explaining the significance of the argument you are making.
